Towards Sustainability: Where do we stand?

We know that the current development is not sustainable;
We need a "quantum leap" towards sustainability very soon;
We have a good ethical principle and political concept;
We have a good metric and much of the information we need;
We have technological and conceptual solutions.

But in general we do not act accordingly.

Our common value system does not support progress towards sustainability.

There is no "silver bullet" that would solve the problem once and for all.

We need many small steps in the right direction!
